

Shanghai Summer Online School (BRICS Program) 2022

- Organizer

The Shanghai Summer Online School (BRICS Program) 2022 is sponsored by Shanghai Municipal Education Commission and organized by Center for BRICS Studies, Fudan University.

- Introduction

Since its beginning in 2014, the BRICS Summer Program has been held annually for 8 years. The Program aims to build a platform of friendship and consensus for young students from BRICS countries, provides the young generation of BRICS countries with a chance to have a better understanding of China's social-cultural, political and economic development, BRICS cooperation and changes in global governance, promoting mutual communication and consolidating the popular foundation for BRICS cooperation.

- Curriculum

According to the current global epidemic situation, to ensure that students could participate in activities in a safe and healthy environment, the 2022 BRICS Summer Program will be held online, meanwhile team research will be conducted. Team research will be grouped according to the topics, excellent research group will be rewarded.

- Theme introduction

The theme of the BRICS Summer Program is “A New Stage of Globalization: BRICS Countries’ Development Impetus”

What are the characteristics of the source, performance and evolution of development impetus in the country as a special kind of system integration? Do and how do the development impetus of different countries present figurative differences and abstract commonalities? The BRICS countries and emerging economies have carried out exceptionally rich practical attempts on these issues, and have also accumulated much-needed lessons to be summed up. This theme focuses on the keyword "National Development Impetus", and divides the hot topics of global governance and the development impetus of the BRICS countries and emerging economies from a multi-disciplinary, multi-field and multi-level perspective.
